TO TRACE STOLEN JEWELS.

Jewellers Keep a Descriptive Record of Their Stock. (New York Sun.)

All large Jewelry-houses keep a tailed description of the more valuable articles in their stock, so that, if lost or stolen before or after purchase, they may be traced with some chance of success. All wor latter are General John Echois, president; Robert Burke, vice-president; Ed-ward Echols, second vice-president; M. N. Bradley, Isaac Witz, G. G. Child, Henry Hutcheson, Phillip H. Trout, A. S. Lara, M. Erskine Miller, and H. M. Bell, The Augusta National Bank elect-dent instead of nine directors, as here-

When an article which had passed through the hands of jewellers who keep accurate records of their stock and of the jewelry left with them for repairs is lost or stolen, after leaving their possession, the owner can at once get from them a description with which to seek the jewel's discovery. If the article has not been changed in any way it will be recognized as soon as seen; but there's the death of P. N. Powell and the retirement of A. J. Butts, so that the new board is William Pattick president; Christian S. Baker, vice-president; William T. McCue, William I. Luschbaugh, Garret G. Gooch, Hugh W. Henry, Arista Hoge, James H. Woodward, Andrew Bowling, and Lawrence W. H. Peyton, the last three being new members. The City Democratic Committee to-night determined to order a primary election to choose candidates for the various city offices. For several years past the contests for these offices have been go-asyou-please affairs, and as a result the city government is not wholly Democratic.

The Rev. M. L. Wood, called to the Stauton Baptist church to succeed the Rev. W. J. E. Cox, who a few days ago assumed the pastorate of the Seventh Presented church of Baltimore, arrived with records as perfect as they can be made, but they cannot describe flawless diamonds which are not conspicuous for size so accurately that they can be identified when removed from their setting. That, at least, is the opinion of a leading jeweller, who the reporter interviewed on the subject.

A dog belonging to Mr. Swadley set in, and soon brought the deer to bay, the other dogs joining in and giving the game a rough tussle. The deer finally lay quiet as if dead, until Mr. Swadley approached very close, when, to his surprise, it sprang up and renewed the attack, including Mr. Swadley in the onslaught.

The deer was a very large buck, with

The jeweller who talked thus frankly told of an experience he had with a customer who brought an emerald, valued at $1,500, to be reset. When she had explained what she wanted done, she said:

In the company's history, All of its property goes on the tax-list, which would not have been accomplished, it is controlled by the jeweller who told this story said that it worked perfectly when the stolen ornaments were not altered by the thieves. The description not only emabled them to be traced, but enabled the owner to prove ownership when they were recovered. Against dishonest servants, who usually pawn the stolen property unchanged in any respect, it proved of entire efficacy, but against profes-lonal thieves, who make it a practice at once to destroy the characteristics of what they steal, it was of little use. The sum and substance of what he said was that one must possess a diamond worth a fortune, one which has comparatively a fortune, one which has comparatively few equals, and one with an easily dis few equals, and one with an easily dis-tinguished flaw, to stand a good chance for recovering it if stolen.

Another jeweller, who is at the head of the diamond department of a large es-tablishment, said that its system of detablishment, said that its system of de-scribing the jeweiry it handled was prac-tically perfect, and afforded an almost certain means of tracing ornaments which had been stolen and of identifying them when recovered. He did not care to go into details, for obvious reasons, and did not discuss the possibility of fail-ure in tracing atolen jeweiry due to the destruction of characteristic marks by the thieves.

One can be certain, however, that precious stones left for resetting with a jeweller who keepe an accurate descriptive record of his goods will be practically safe from substitution when in his hands, for the workmen would never have the opportunity to put one stone in place of another without almost immediate detection. Exposure would follow so quickly that the culprit would be at once arrested. The woman with the emerald might safely have left it with the jewelier who refused to guarantee against what was really a most unlikely contingency, for not even a $1.20 stone, even it could be successfully secreted after being stolen, would be worth a long intrisonment.

Thieves too, have not always the time One can be certain, however, that pre-prisonment.

Thieves, too, have not always the time or the means to completely remove the distinguishing marks of jewels, so that, furnished with a good description, even Captain O'Brien's detectives may trace the stolen ornaments and blentify them when found them when found.

CHICAGO PRODUCE MARKET.

CHICAGO, ILL., January 14.—The wheat market dragged through a duil, uneventful session to-day, not permitting of very remunerative trading, owing to the restricted range of prices, and presenting little in the way of facts or figures that was new or unexpected. The opening trading was with some firmness, the world's shipments, as reported yesterday, being a little larger than the expected amounts footed up.

May wheat opened at 59 1-8059 1-4c., sold between 58 7-8 and 53 3-8058 1-2c., and closed at 59 3-8c.—3-8c. higher than yesterday. Cash wheat was nominally unchanged.

Until moon there was scarcely a change in corn prices, and the trades could be numbered without difficulty. After that hour there was more activity, and firmer prices prevailed, the strength then displayed by wheat having considerable influence for good.

May corn opened at 28 1-4c., sold be-played by wheat having considerable influence for good.

May corn opened at 28 1-4c., sold between 28 1-86/28 1-4 and 28 7-8c., and closed at the outside-3-8c. higher than yesterday. Cash corn was quiet and lower, closing firm, with the futures.

The oats market was stagmant through the morning, and only a little better in the afternoon. The rallying tendency of wheat and corn, however, sufficed to strengthen the feeling in oats, a recovery taking place. May oats closed 1-46/3-8c, higher than yesterday. Cash oats were steady.

The opening was strong and nigher, the better prices for hogs having extended aid. The grain markets having set in to decline shortly afterwards, provisions receded in sympathy, recovering later with them. May pork closed lich higher, May lard 567 1-2c, higher, May lard 567 1-2c, higher, May lard 567 1-2c, higher May ribs lie, higher, Domestic and foreign markets were quiet and firm.
